Offering Dominated by Performance Sires

This year's White Suffolk offering is dominated by Felix 191175 and Days 190114 and their sons.

They are the type we like, born easily, fast growing, medium maturity, plenty of muscle and great for eating quality.

This is backed up by their data with both rams being in the top 5% of the breed for LEQ – the index that targets improving growth, carcass yield and quality and improving worm resistance.

Felix 191175 is having a large influence in our flock. This is our second offering of his sons and as we used 4 sons as ram lambs there are also a significant number of grandsons in the sale. 191175 sons were highly popular last year in both our stud and flock ram offerings. He is in the best 5% of the breed for lambing ease, eye muscle depth, IMF, Shear force and low worm egg count. With their great phenotype it made sense they were popular.

The other highly represented sire is Days 190114. He is also top 5% for LEQ and offers plenty of weight being top 10% for post weaning wt. He is also in the top 20% for the eating quality traits.

With our maternal composite rams our lead sire is Days 20M036. He really fits in with the aims of our breeding programme. We want fast early growth, moderate mature ewe size, plenty of lambs and good carcasses on those lambs. 20M036 meets those criteria well having low adult weight while still being well above average for post weaning weight. He is also in the top 10% of the analysis for yearling weaning rate and top 5% for eye muscle depth which gives him an MCP+ index in the top 5% of the analysis.

As always, the catalogue is on our website and on the sheep genetics website. Videos of our stud rams are also on our website. Contact us on 0428 521630 if you would like any further details.

Why Choose Days Maternal Composites?

MN3

“We started using Days Whiteface rams six years ago. They are giving the results we want – High weaning percentages and the ability to sell lambs at supermarket weights or carry them through to export weights”

Bred Well Fed Well Pilot Program

We were pleased to hold a pilot workshop for the Bred Well Fed Well Sheep programme in November 2022. Being a pilot programme both attendees and deliverers gained a lot from the day.

We would encourage producers to attend a workshop if they get the chance.
